"A Yorkshive Tragedy" was entered on the Stationers' Books May 2, 1608, and published the same year. A second edition, also in quarto, was "printed by T.P." in 1619. There weve no other impressions until 1664 and 1685 , when it was included, with other doubtful plays, in the third and fourth Shakespeare folios respectively. On questions of authorship, foundation, the three companion Plays, and the like, the student is referred to the usual well-known channels of criticism.

Mr. J. A. Herbert, of the MS. Department, British Museum, reports that the reproduction from the original is "very good indeed on the whole." As "rather too heavy" he particularizes the note (in script) on fy-leaf, the title-page, $B_{3}, B_{4} b, C_{4} b$ and $D_{2} b$. A2 and the rest are "excellent reproductions, could hardly be bettered," except that there is "no flaw in original" in the 7th line from bottom on A3, and "no stain" in 3 rd line from bottom on B2.
